as in the bestselling the alphabet versus the goddess leonard shlain s provocative new book promises to change the way readers view themselves and where they came from sex time and power offers a tantalizing answer to an age old question why did big brained homo sapiens suddenly emerge some 150 000 years ago the key according to shlain is female sexuality drawing on an awesome breadth of research he shows how long ago the narrowness of the newly bipedal human female s pelvis and the increasing size of infants heads precipitated a crisis for the species natural selection allowed for the adaptation of the human female to this environmental stress by reconfiguring her hormonal cycles entraining them with the periodicity of the moon the results however did much more than ensure our existence they imbued women with the concept of time and gave them control over sex a power that males sought to reclaim and the possibility of achieving immortality through heirs drove men to construct patriarchal cultures that went on to dominate so much of human history from the nature of courtship to the evolution of language shlain s brilliant and wide ranging exploration stimulates new thinking about very old matters a consideration of menstruation in the lives of teenage girls and in the lives of teenage boys discusses all of the factors related to menopause looks at the social status of women in two cultures and compares cultural attitudes toward menopause the family system test fast developed by thomas m gehring is an important new tool for investigating family relations based on the structural systemic theory of families it is a figural technique for representing emotional bonds cohesion and hierarchical structures in the family or similar social systems in this unique volume the editors draw on current theory and research in family or similar social systems together with a variety of empirical studies that have used the fast to provide a comprehensive overview and assessment of the test and its use in various clinical research contexts the book is divided into four sections each focusing on a different aspect of the fast part 1 describes the concepts and psychometric properties of the fast within the context of theoretically and empirically relevant aspects of the field of family psychology as a whole special emphasis is given to systematic structural approaches to assessing individual and family functioning part ii focuses on the use of the fast in developmental research for example the the fast has been used to show how family constructs are influenced by age type of family and situation part iii deals with cross cultural issues and compares the interpersonal constructs of japanese and chinese families to western families finally part iv addresses the applications of the fast in clinical setting in diagnosis of biopsychosocial problems and planning and evaluation of clinical interventions the result is a book that helps to bridge the gap between theory practice and research it will be essential reading for users of the fast and all clinicians and researchers who work in family relations and development
